

Intelligent Ingrid

Once upon a time, there was an intelligent girl called Ingrid who lived on the edge of a big city. Early one morning, she woke up and decided to go to Grandpa's house. Into her bag she put a cookie, an apple and a pink cookie.

First, she walked over a bridge where she met a squirrel-a red squirrel, a fluffy squirrel. "I'm hungry," said the squirrel. "What have you got in your bag?" "I've got a cookie, and an apple." But she kept the pink cookie hidden! "I'll have the cookie please", said the squirrel, so Ingrid gave the squirrel the cookie and it ate it all up.

Next, she walked beside a pond where she met a black, tall dog. "I'm hungry," said the dog. "What have you got in your bag?" "I've got an apple". But she kept the pink cookie hidden! "I'll have the apple please", said the dog. So, Ingrid gave the dog the apple and it ate it all up.

After that, she walked to a crossroads where she realized she was ravenous. So, Ingrid took the pink cookie out and she ate it all up. Then, she arrived at Grandpa's house.

Unfortunately, Grandpa was hungry and there was nothing left in Intelligent Ingrid's bag. Luckily, Grandpa had an idea.

Finally, they made chicken soup for dinner.

